L	Module Content
	The learning outcomes will be developed through the following evolving module themes: Business framework and management in the Cosmetic industry The key concept of strategic management within an international business context. It begins by introducing and understanding of corporate strategy as it relates trans-national corporations as players in an increasing global environment. The impact of Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) and actions of global players as they seek to identify competitive advantage is considered. Growth of the global marketplace has been accompanied by national and international regulations governing the openness of trade. Thus trade agreements, e.g. under the banner of WTO, are examined as well as the issues which link this to the "hyperglobalisation" thesis. A distinction is made between those companies operating in market, state and transitional economies. You will gain understanding of the business principles (political, socio-cultural, economic and technological factors) that have been found to influence variations in international cosmetic business structures and management styles in different countries. Relate the conceptual theory of "internationalisation", innovation and competitive advantage to cosmetic industry in relation to other industries and locations

	Marketing management in the Cosmetic industry You will gain understanding of the International Marketing principles focuses on challenges and opportunities of marketing new and existing cosmetic products to the international marketplace. It builds on student's knowledge to key concepts and theories of international marketing that informs the use and adaptation of marketing principles and how these are applicable in the Cosmetic industry in different countries. It pays special attention to variations from home-country marketing and to strategies used by international marketers. The principles of distribution management, marketing (including e-marketing) and sales will be covered and you will be able to think critically and develop your business acumen skills. The above themes will merge to the Project Management theme: Project management in the Cosmetic industry You will apply the principles of QbD and the principles of experimentation strategies via project management and planning &amp; product launch exercises. You will demonstrate effective time management, teamwork and the ability to multitask. You will be able to integrate knowledge from the co-requisite module "Formulation, Manufacture and Material Science skills for Cosmetic, Personal care and Fragrance products" on raw material selection, formulation design, manufacturing steps and quality control processes, to the steps of a Product Development Exercise. You will be expected to demonstrate a critical approach in project planning, from a market brief and raw material selection to final product validation and launch. You will be working as part of a group to simulate the project planning teams in the cosmetic industry. The creation of a business report, a marketing plan and an overall project planning essay for a new cosmetic product will encourage you to evaluate the impact of the external business environmental factors to the brand/organisation on two countries in different continents; and to demonstrate your learning and competence in the management of resources, particularly the scope, schedule, quality, cost and marketing of the new product. Transferable skills: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Team work</li> <li>• Critical thinking</li> <li>• Problem-solving</li> <li>• Time management</li> <li>• Multitasking</li> <li>• Business acumen</li> <li>• Informed and confident communication</li> </ul>
M	Module Learning Outcomes

Additional Reading

Accessing, researching and reading journal articles. Please note this is a post-graduate level module and at this level you are expected to access additional reading material to expand your knowledge, become better informed and better equipped to meet the challenges of the dynamic and evolving international business environment. You will also need to access such resources for your summative assessment.

The library has access to Online sources for which you will need your student id and password. The best way to identify and access relevant journals is via Discover, which you can access Discover through the main library web page

<http://library.sunderland.ac.uk/>

As well as additional support through the business and management web pages

<http://library.sunderland.ac.uk/supportforyoursubject/business/>

A starting point for appropriate journal articles is the Journal of International Business studies, International marketing, and Project management

In addition, both the Economist www.economist.com and the Financial Times www.ft.com This can be accessed via the library website. There are also printed copies of these and other quality newspapers which have good business coverage (e.g. the Sunday Times) and business periodicals available in the library.
