

University of Sunderland

Moschovi, Alexandra and Supartono, Alexander (2015) Re-Visiting the Colonial Archive in the Era of Web 2.0. In: The Impact of Digitization on Photographic Heritage, Europeanna, 29-30 January 2015, CS Digital (KU Leuven) and the Lieven Gevaert Centre for Photography, Leuven Belgium.

Downloaded from: <http://sure.sunderland.ac.uk/id/eprint/12002/>

Usage guidelines

Please refer to the usage guidelines at <http://sure.sunderland.ac.uk/policies.html> or alternatively contact sure@sunderland.ac.uk.

This website uses cookies to improve your experience. We'll assume you're ok with this, but you can opt-out if you wish.

Accept

Read More

DIGITAL MEETS CULTURE Official registered magazine

Monday, 08 February 2021

Europeanana Photography Final Conference

'The Impact of Digitization on Photographic Heritage: Memories Reframed'. Chronicles from KU Leuven

Posted on: 4 February 2015

Share / Save

Leave a comment

by Fred Truyen, KU Leuven (Europeanana Photography Project Coordinator)

The EuropeananaPhotography project ended 31st of January 2015. To mark the occasion, we organized a two-day conference in Leuven on Thursday 29 and Friday 30th of January, under the theme “The Impact of Digitization on Photographic Heritage: Memories Reframed“. The conference opened with a keynote by Elizabeth Edwards on “Shifting Assemblages: Scale, Scope and Intensity in the Practice of History“. Elizabeth took mass digitization to task with a plea for “close reading” inspired by Moretti. Using examples of colonial photography, she showed the importance of a careful, historical look at the different meaning layers in photos. The lecture kicked off a series of lectures that all seemed to revolve around the issues addressed in the keynote, as an unfolding, spiralling dialogue that kept everyone glued to his seat until the end of the first day.

A nothing short of brilliant overview of early photography by John Balean of TopFoto was followed by Fred Truyen's explanation of the choices made in EuropeananaPhotography, where the possibilities of digitization to “reframe” and rediscover the early photos were discussed. Indeed, the enlarged, crystal clear reprints in the exhibition, with blistering dynamic range and razor sharp detail, obtained by directly processing the information from the glassplate have little to do with the nostalgic, somewhat yellowish appearance of original prints.

[\[Show as slideshow\]](#)

After an overview of the project by Antonella Fresa from Promoter srl, the afternoon was a mix of lectures and “collection pitches”, in which partners displayed their contributions to the total of 430.000 images that EuropeanaPhotography contributed to Europeanana. Prof. Jan Baetens caught attention with his provocative lecture “Against Crowdsourcing”, in which he highlighted some serious issues in the quest to gather crowdsourced input, as is now hyping in many digitization projects.

While Stephen Brown and David Croft showed a smart algorithm to search for similar images in a collection, Alexander Supartono stunned the audience with his “Re-Visiting the Colonial Archive in the Era of Web 2.0”, where he showed how Indonesian artists re-appropriate colonial heritage in an unsettling way that undoubtedly must come as a shock to many archivalists: current Indonesian people are superimposed on colonial pictures, disclosing and disrupting the colonial setting. A better vindication of Elizabeth’s keynote was difficult to imagine. More so, it is a perfect example of the innovative “creative reuse” that Europeanana wants to stimulate!

At the end of this long day Joanna Zylinska’s enthusiasm and rhetorical talent gave the audience a much needed energy boost. Her Photomediations project is a very convincing example of Open publishing and how this unleashes new creativity.

During the day collections were presented by TopFoto, Lithuanian Art Museums, IMAGNO, CRDI, Parisienne de Photographie, Arbejdermuseet, United Archives and Gencat.

The second day of the EuropeanaPhotography Final Conference was dedicated to Europeanana and its family of projects. James Morley gave an interesting overview of new initiatives Europeanana is engaged in, and highlighted the importance of a high quality online experience for the user. This will be enhanced by IIF technology, now being implemented by some large collections.

The highlight of the day was the enthusing talk by Sofie Taes, curator of the Leuven localization of the All our Yesterdays exhibition. A parade of breath-taking images from Leuven’s City archive was displayed, unravelling the story of “Trading Spaces / Changing Places”, the concept behind the expo. The perfectly choreographed presentation was testimony of the enormous, meticulous work that went in the curation of this exhibition, developed in collaboration with the City archive Leuven and Erfgoedcel Leuven. It also revealed that the City archive does host a collection of images that can stand its ground in the face of the collections of the prestigious partners in Europeana Photography. Captivating moments of past city life stole the hearts of the audience.

[\[Show as slideshow\]](#)

This was followed by a collection pitch of both Leuven collections, the collection of the University and the one from the archive. The university collection is very unique, in the sense that it are all images taken with a didactic purpose, to define the canon of Art History. As such, it shows us what belonged to this canon before the second world war.

Four Europeana related project presentations rounded up the morning session, with presentations of Europeana Space, Europeana Fashion, Daguerreobase and RICHERS.

In the second keynote of the conference, Simon Tanner from King's college London talked about “The Impact of Digitization on Photographic Heritage“. The slides of his presentation are available on slideshare. It addressed many issues as to how museums and collection holders can cope with the digital revolution and adapt their business models to it.

This was followed by a much appreciated lecture by Bruno Vandermeulen, digitization expert of KU Leuven, on his photography for the archaeological Sagalassos project.

Charlotte Waelde concluded the lecture series with a talk about “Digitising photographs: thinking around originality“, where she addressed novel ideas about IPR, an issue of great concern in the EuropeanaPhotography project, to which we are seeking solutions in Europeana Space.

During the day further collection pitches were shown by Divadelni Ustav, SGI, ICIMSS, NALIS, Alinari, MHF and PolFoto.

Visit the europeana-photography Showcase

Related Articles

Show & Tell & Touch: Digital Culture and Education

Contemporary education, formal classrooms, museum educational programmes, lifelong learning are all increasingly embracing 'the digital'. As more and more arts and culture artefacts become available in this digital space, it was only a matter of time before the two worlds, heritage and education, would find each other. But have they really? Show & Tell & Touch: Digital Culture and Education is the second workshop organized by E-Space on education, and aims to reflect on ho...

IPR: good or bad for Creativity in the Digital World?

In a recently published post on the Cultural Studies Leuven blog, Prof. Fred Truyen (KU Leuven), coordinator of the E-Space project's photography pilot, offers some reflections on his experience with Intellectual Property Rights (IPR) in the successfully concluded EuropeanaPhotography project...

Europeana Photography: excellent results

The review meeting, hosted by the project Coordinator Fred Truyen at the premises of KU Leuven, welcomed the Project Officer Krzysztof Nichczynski and the reviewers Makx Dekkers and Tom Wachtel with whom the Europeana Photography WP leaders had the possibility to illustrate and discuss the project achievements. Photo courtesy TopFoto.co.uk

E-Space disseminated @ Europeana Photography final conference

The connection between Europeana Space and Europeana Photography is stronger than ever, basing on a Cooperation Agreement and most of all on common themes of reflection and activities. On 29-30 January, the Final Conference of Europeana Photography was organized in Leuven, hosted by KU Leuven, Coordinator of Europeana Photography and partner in Europeana Space. The title of the conference is: The Impact of Digitization on Photographic Heritage: Memories Reframed. At the conference were pres...

3D Amsterdam animation Antonella Fresca archaeology art Athens audiovisual augmented reality Berlin big data Brussels Caterina Sbrana citizen participation Citizen science Civic Epistemologies co-creation computer graphics conference conferences and events conformance check Coventry University creative industry creativity CULTURA cultural heritage dance DCH-RP digital digital archive digital art Digital Cultural Heritage digital culture Digital Heritage digital humanities digital libraries digital preservation digitisation digitization DPF Manager e-AGE e-Infrastructures e-learning E-Space EAGLE education EGI EUDAT Euromed Europeana Europeanaphotography Europeana Space European Commission exhibition Eötvös Loránd University festival file formats Fred Truyen Girona GIS Hackathon Horizon 2020 ICT innovation interactive installation IPR KU Leuven Linked Heritage London MediaConch metadata multimedia museums open data open source software Paris participatory approaches participatory approaches to cultural heritage PCP PDF/A performing arts Photoconsortium photography Pisa PREFORMA preservation Promoter REACH project research RICHES Sarah Whatley standards technology UNESCO user

engagement VeraPDF video Vienna virtual reality workshop

Promoter SRL

DIGITAL MEETS CULTURE periodico iscritto al n. 295/2018 R.N.C-n1/19 Registro della stampa Tribunale di Pisa, direttore responsabile Nella Deangeli